Required Texts:

All readings are on Blackboard

Course Description:

Life span Development will cover human development over the life span; optimum patterns of life, and biological and social conditions that influence development.

Accommodations:

The University of Texas at Austin provides upon request appropriate academic accommodations for qualified students with disabilities. For more information, contact the Office of the Dean of Students at 471-6259, 471-6441 TTY.

Course Objectives:

To foster an in-depth, critical understanding of lifespan development. The course will investigate multiple dimensions of philosophical, historical, theoretical, empirical and application matters. Several schools of thought, perspectives and developmental theories will be addressed. A range of contemporary issues will be actively discussed including socioeconomic status, political climate, social norms, cultural identity, mental health, family dynamics, academic achievement and social adjustment into a unifying, comprehensive framework. Active student participation is not only encouraged but also expected.

Please read the syllabus carefully. The content of this syllabus is subject to revision at anytime. Students will be given notice of any changes in advance. You are responsible for checking your email everyday and for knowing about changes whether or not you are present in class at the time of the announcement.

Attendance is extremely important since this class meets monthly. As previously stated, each student is expected participate in class through the reading presentations and class discussions.

Reading Discussions & Reflections: Students will sign up for 2 readings for which they will lead the class discussion and submit a 2-3 page double-spaced reaction paper. The paper will include a brief summary of the reading, your interpretation or reaction and 2-3 discussion questions. You must cite a related article (not included in our readings) for each of your reading reflections. Student Led discussions will occur at the beginning of class. Each student will conduct/submit 3 discussions. 10 Points

The Mid-Term and Final Exams are cumulative. More details about the exams will be provided within a few days before they occur.

Observations/Interviews: Students will observe someone that is in a developmental stage that is different than their own. You will do a 5 page paper for each subject. Because infants are difficult to communicate with, you can select from the following developmental stages:

- Early childhood, 3-6 years
- Adolescence, 12-20 years
- Middle adulthood, 41-60 years
- Middle childhood, 7-11 years
- Early adulthood, 21-40 years
- Late adulthood, 61 + years

Let the person know (and their parent for minors) that you would like to spend some time with them (at least 45 minutes) while they engage in normal activities. Then you will ask them a few questions. Thinking of your subject's developmental stage, pick 3 of these questions and 2 of your own:

- What is the best part about being your age?
- What is most challenging about being your age?
- What is your biggest priority right now?
- When you think about yourself in a few years, what are you looking forward to?
- If you could tell your younger self something, what would it be?
- What surprises you about being your age?
- What is it like being your gender at your age?
- What is it like being your race/ethnicity at your age?
- Are you happy with your life right now? Why or Why not?

This 5 page paper will include 5 sections.

1. A brief introduction of the subject
2. A brief description of your observation. You should explain what you observed, how the individual interacted with the world and how the world reacted to the individual.
3. State the questions you asked along with your subject's responses.
4. Thinking about your own developmental stage, how do the subject's responses compare to your perspectives.
5. Conclusion, which includes how the observation/interview fits or does not fit into a developmental theory.

Note on All Assignments:

All assignments will be collected at the BEGINNING of class. Assignments submitted after the first five minutes of class will be reduced by half a letter grade and those submitted after class will be reduced a full letter grade for each calendar day it is late. No rewriting of assignments will be allowed since there will be ample time and opportunity to ask questions about each assignment during class time and between classes.

All written assignments should be written in 12-point (Arial or Times New Roman) font, double-spaced, with 1" margins on all sides and page numbers. Cover sheets and reference pages are not included in the page count. Assignments should meet the stated minimum or maximum page limit. All written assignments should make reference to the readings and theoretical frameworks in this course. The content of your papers and how you present your written thoughts are important. Therefore, students must carefully proofread and spell-check their written assignments. Writing assistance can be found at the Graduate Student Writing Services; http://www.utexas.edu/student/utlc/tutoring/grad_writing_services.php.

All papers will be submitted according to APA style. This style is of particular importance for in-text citation and the representation of sources in the reference section. A good resource can be found at <http://owl.english.purdue.edu/owl/resource/560/01>.

Academic Integrity:

Policy on Scholastic Dishonesty: Students who violate University rules on scholastic dishonesty are subject to disciplinary penalties, including the possibility of failure in the course and/or dismissal from the University. Since such dishonesty harms the individual, all students, and the integrity of the University, policies on scholastic dishonesty will be strictly enforced. For further information please visit the Student Judicial Services Web site: <http://deanofstudents.utexas.edu/sjs>.
