Other Research Activities

U.S. Latino & Latina WWII/Voces Oral History Project – Work has been ongoing since 1999. It has included organizing and co-organizing major conferences in May 2000 in Austin; in Washington, September 2004; in Austin on March 2006; and one scheduled for November 2015. Activities have included raising funds; selecting scholar participants; organizing workshops and symposia; selecting manuscripts; editing, revising and working with the publishers. Have developed a new model to uniformly index tapes and make interviews more accessible to participating scholars. College students have been involved in interviewing, writing stories, indexing, as part of classroom assignments and as volunteers, and, as resources allow, employees.

Holt, Rinehart & Winston publishers – Consultant/reviewer for educational material, “Reading Like a Historian,” 2006.

Voices of Valor – Dramaturg for original play written by James E. Garcia and produced jointly by Arizona State University Public Events and the University of Texas at Austin’s Performing Arts Center. Play is based, in part, on interviews from the U.S. Latino & Latina WWII Oral History Project, 2005-2006. The play continues to be performed in Arizona.
