Course description:

This course will examine works of a number of Eastern European women writers, such as Olga Tokarczuk (Poland), Natalka Babina (Belarus), Oksana Zabuzhko (Ukraine), Dubravka Ugrešić (Croatia), Herta Müller (Romania – Germany), Sofi Oksanen (Finland), Ludmila Ulitskaya and Ludmila Petrushevskaya (Russia), and trace their role and involvement in resisting not only political regimes but also gender-based oppression. We will also read supplemental articles, interviews, and secondary sources to provide a general understanding of contemporary politics and ethnic conflict as well as gender roles in Eastern Europe. Through class discussion, students will discuss the many forms and repercussions of women's resistance to recent issues and events within this strategic region.

Disclaimer

The students should come to class with an open mind and ready to discuss complex, at times controversial and difficult issues, such as totalitarianism, violence, sexually explicit material, drug and alcohol abuse, and others. This class aims at providing a safe environment for everyone; therefore the students are expected to treat each other, and the instructor, with respect and courtesy. If you feel that you would prefer not to deal with such topics, you are advised to drop this course.

Course Introduction

Class Attendance: Class attendance is required. You are expected to read all assigned texts before class and to participate actively in the discussions. According to the General Information catalog, “[a] student who is absent from a class or examination for the observance of a religious holy day may complete the work issued within a reasonable time after the absence, if proper notice has been given” (page 71). The deadline for notification of such an absence is fourteen days prior to the class absence or the first class day for religious holydays that fall within the first two weeks of the semester.

Participation:

Please keep in mind that attendance alone does not equal participation. You are expected to be fully prepared, to have your textbooks with you, to refrain from texting during class, to actively listen and to speak up. If you come late, after the roll is taken, you will be counted as absent. If you cannot make it to class, let the instructor know.

Participation Rubric
