DIFFICULT DIALOGUES: RACE & PUBLIC POLICY IN THE U.S.

Professor: Dr. Robert Crosnoe
Office: Burdine Hall 576
Hours: T: 12:00-2:00
Contact: 232-6340; crosnoe@austin.utexas.edu

Teaching Asst.: Robyn Keith
Office: Burdine Hall 602
Hours:
Contact: robynakeith@utexas.edu

Course Description

This course examines racial/ethnic change and inequalities in the U.S., with a focus on public policies that attempt to address inequalities in the educational system, including higher education. It is part of the Difficult Dialogues program, which was originally designed (and funded by the Ford Foundation) to help promote open scholarly inquiry, academic freedom, and respect for different cultures and beliefs on the campus. This course adapts the Difficult Dialogues approach to the Signature Course format.

Two inter-related foci form the heart of this course. The first revolves around racial/ethnic population change and inequality. We will analyze the demographics of the rapidly diversifying U.S. and Texas populations, explore the social, psychological, cultural, and structural implications of this diversification for young people and schools, and discuss how social policy, including educational policy and practice, has evolved (or not) in response. We turn in the second part of the course to the policy arena. In particular, we will delve into major policy initiatives and debates that are associated with racial and ethnic inequality in higher education, especially affirmative action. Here, we will focus on major court cases, including the Hopwood decision, that have greatly affected UT.

Class Home Page

Go to this link and log into the Blackboard system with your UT EID. You will find a link to this course under the heading “My Courses”. All course material will be posted on this web page, as will announcements and grades. In addition, most readings can be accessed through this web page (in the “Documents” section).

Course Requirements

The requirements of the course and related grading scheme are as follows:

- Class (and Class Activity) Attendance: 15%
- Class Participation: 15%
- Short Papers: 30%
- Research Paper: 40%

Class attendance and participation. As hinted by the course title, dialogue is a central component of this course, which includes the regular class meeting (two hours) led by Dr. Crosnoe and a discussion section (1 hour) led by the TA. In this context, dialogue does not mean that we should be out to win debates with our fellow students or throw out uninformed opinions, nor does it mean that we will strive to come together as a one-view-for-all group. Instead, what we would like to achieve is an ACADEMICALLY INFORMED dialogue regarding the issues that are being discussed, using the readings, faculty member guests, each other, and previous class discussion as the key tools to help us discuss these issues in a civil manner. This is not to say that our personal experiences, backgrounds, and opinions are not important. They are, but our personal experiences and backgrounds are also (very) limited. In short, students are expected to be central academically informed, fully prepared participants in the discussions that take place. And, of course, a significant part of a good dialogue involves listening…not just talking!
Short papers. Each student is required to complete three assignments during the course of the semester, two of which require an out-of-class activity.

First, signature courses are supposed to expose students to the many lectures that are held on campus during any given semester. Thus, as part of this course, each student will be required to attend ONE of a of SEVEN approved public lectures at the Population Research Center brown bag series, which is held on Fridays at 12. Students will attend one lecture (one in January, three in February, one in March, two in April). They will then write a two page (single space) reflection on what they heard (see instruction sheet on Blackboard). This lecture report will be due in class the week after the attended lecture.

Second, signature courses also draw on university “gems”, the unique resources (e.g., collections, museums) of the University that are available to students. Given the subject of this course, our “gem” is the Lyndon Baines Johnson Presidential Library, which features, among other things, a display on Civil Rights as part of its permanent exhibit on American History: 1908-1973. On February 14th, class will be held at the Library, including a lecture on the resources available there and a tour of the aforementioned exhibit. Students will then write a two page (single spaced) response paper on what they learned there about the Civil Rights Movement and Civil Rights Act (see instruction sheet on Blackboard). This gem paper is due on February 21st.

Third, each student will submit one reading response paper during the semester. See instruction sheet on Blackboard. The paper (two pages, single-spaced) should reflect serious engagement with any of the readings from that week. After the course begins, Dr. Crosnoe will randomly assign each student to a week, and so due dates will vary according to the week to which the student is assigned.

Research paper. Each student will submit a paper (5 pages single-spaced) on a particular course topic of your choosing. See instruction sheet on Blackboard. This paper will involve independent research as well as critical analysis, the goal being to synthesize extant research on the selected topic and then, based on that synthesis, come up with policy recommendations and/or talking points. This paper will be discussed and written in stages throughout the semester. The final paper is due on May 1st.

Classroom and University Policies

Late policies. All written assignments must be turned in, hard copy, at the start of class on the day due. Papers will be docked ½ letter grade for every day they are late. I will not accept papers by email.

Students with disabilities. The University of Texas at Austin provides upon request appropriate academic adjustments for qualified students with disabilities. For more information, contact the Office of the Dean of Students at 471-6259, 471-4641.

Religious holy days. A student who misses an examination, work assignment, or other project due to the observance of a religious holy day will be given an opportunity to complete the work missed within a reasonable time after the absence, provided that he or she has properly notified each instructor. The policy of the University of Texas at Austin is that the student must notify each instructor at least fourteen days prior to the classes scheduled on dates he or she will be absent to observe a religious holy day. For religious holidays that fall within the first two weeks of the semester, the notice should be given on the first day of the semester. The student may not be penalized for these excused absences but the instructor may appropriately respond if the student fails to complete satisfactorily the missed assignment or examination within a reasonable time after the excused absence.

Class web sites and student privacy. Web-based, password-protected class sites are associated with all academic courses taught at The University. Syllabi, handouts, assignments and other resources are types of information that may be available within these sites. Site activities could include exchanging e-mail, engaging in class discussions and chats, and exchanging files. In addition, electronic class rosters will be a component of the sites. Students who do not want their names included in these electronic class rosters must restrict their directory information in the Office of the Registrar, Main Building, Room 1.
information on restricting directory information see:

Professor Profile
A UT alum (Plan II Class of 1994), Professor Robert Crosnoe received his Ph.D. in Sociology from Stanford University and held a two-year post-doctoral fellowship in demography (the study of populations) and developmental psychology (the study of how people develop from birth to death) at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill before returning to Austin to join the faculty of the Department of Sociology in 2001. As a fellow at the Population Research Center, he conducts research on childhood and adolescence with an emphasis on education and health. Of particular interest is the phenomenon of resilience—how people succeed in life despite difficult circumstances.
Course Schedule & Readings
(All readings can be downloaded on the course Blackboard page)

PART I: RACE/ETHNIC DIVERSITY & POPULATION CHANGE

Week 1: Race/Ethnic Diversity
(January 17)

No readings

Week 2: Race/Ethnicity and Free Speech on Campus
(January 24)

Week 3: Race/Ethnic Inequalities in Education
(January 31)

Paper Topic to be Selected and Discussed

Week 4: School Segregation by Race/Ethnicity
(February 7)

Guest Speaker: Meredith Richards, Ph.D. Candidate, Department of Educational Policy & Administration

Week 5: Civil Rights
(February 14)

No Readings

Class will be Held at the Lyndon Baines Johnson Presidential Library
Week 6: Immigration
(February 21)

Guest Speaker: Denise Gilman, Clinical Professor, School of Law

Gem Papers Due in Class

Week 7: International Perspectives
(February 28)

Guest Speaker: Dr. Leticia Marteleto, Assistant Professor, University of Texas at Austin

Paper Outline to be Completed and Discussed in Class

Week 8: Researching Race/Ethnicity and Education
(March 6)

No Readings

Class to be held at PCL 1.339 for orientation to reviewing research by Cynthia Fischer

PART II. RACE/ETHNICITY & SOCIAL/EDUCATIONAL POLICIES

Week 9: College Admissions
(March 20)

Week 10: Pre- and Post-Hopwood UT
(March 27)

Week 11: Policies Targeting Inequality, Part I
(April 3)

Paper Literature Review to be Completed and Discussed

Week 12: Policies Targeting Inequality, Part I
(April 10)

No Readings

Week 13: Early(ier) Intervention
(April 17)

Paper Answer and Policy Response to be Drafted and Discussed

Week 14: Rethinking Race and Policy
(April 24)

Week 15: Conclusion
(May 1)

No Readings

Final Paper Due in Class