Course Overview

Students who want to be engaged citizens—who want to make a difference—from the local to the global level, can benefit from a knowledge of participatory democracy—not just the theory but its practice. These tools give the student the ability to research a contentious public issue to see reality accurately, put their own perspective in context, understand other perspectives, and engage not only in civil discourse, but also in building shared understanding across difference in collaborative inquiry toward creative solutions. Many of the course examples will deal with the environmental, social, and economic issues of sustainability.

Course Objectives

By the end of the course the student should be able to

- Understand differing perspectives on a public issue
- Engage in collaborative inquiry with those holding different perspectives
- Distinguish debate from dialogue and deliberation
- Design a public forum for dialogue and deliberation
- Facilitate small group dialogue and deliberation
- Understand the role of a facilitative leader in community or public life

Recommended Texts:

Any additional required readings will be available on the course Blackboard site.

Class Structure

The 3 hour weekly class will incorporate lecture, class discussion of readings, group exercises, skill-building, and reflection. There will be two to three required off-campus events to attend, as well as two to three required events on campus.

Course Requirements

Class Participation – Maximum Points: 15
All students are expected to attend every class, to arrive on time, to come having completed the readings and discussion questions or other assignments, and to participate in class discussion, small group activities and role-plays. Class participation includes making an effort to learn and practice the skills of dialogue and deliberation. Please bring a cell phone for interactive polling exercises. Note: a portion of your participation grade will be based upon attending office hours with the peer mentor at least once.

On-line Participation - Maximum Points: 5
All students are required to read and follow the class discussion of the readings on our Facebook page, and contribute at least five original entries over the course of the semester and five replies to others’ entries. Each entry should be one paragraph in length (typically three to four sentences). Original entries on the readings for that week should be posted by Sunday evening at 10pm. Replies should be posted by Monday morning no later than 10am.

Issues Paper – Maximum Points: 30
Each student will prepare a four page citizens’ issue guide for the UT Difficult Dialogues forum, following the principles from the course readings. The guide will frame three alternative perspectives on the issue, and provide key research data to inform the discussion. The issues guide is to include reference to no less than 3 scholarly articles or books. It is to be written in a formal but accessible style: third person, organized with an introductory paragraph, statement of the issue, presentation of key data, and framing of alternative perspectives, with appropriate citations and bibliography following MLA, scientific, or Turabian (Chicago) guidelines, and understandable to a non-college educated reader. This project will consist of the following steps, reviews, and due dates:

- Sept. 17 Selection of topic and related articles (presentation by the library staff)
- Sept. 24 Research data and sources (peer review)
- Oct. 1 Introduction, statement of issue, and framing of alternative perspectives (peer review)
- Oct. 8 Draft of entire issue guide (due; peer, peer mentor, and instructor review)
- Oct. 15 Final version (peer and instructor review)
Students are strongly encouraged to use the Undergraduate Writing Center prior to the final draft of the paper. It is recommended that this be done after getting feedback on initial draft and prior to submitting the final draft.

One-Pagers - Maximum Points: 20 (5 points each)

A one-page reflection paper examining your personal experience of a required out-of-class event in the light of course readings and class work. Due the Monday following the event.

- University Lecture Series Reflection - Maximum Points: 5 (Due date: Sept. 24).
- Difficult Dialogues Reflection Paper - Maximum Points: 5 (Due date: Nov. 12)
- Facilitator Training Reflection Paper – Maximum Points: 5 (Due date: Sept. 24)
- “The Future of Higher Education” THECB Forum Reflection Paper (Due date: Oct. 8)

Final Project – Maximum Points: 30

Working in teams of three to five (maximum four teams), students take a public issue of importance to them (campus, local, or global issue), research the issue from a systems perspective, do a stakeholder analysis, and design a public engagement process to collaboratively address the issue. The student team will present the key research findings in class or other on-campus venue, describe the multiple perspectives, and facilitate an in-class or on-campus dialogue or deliberation on the topic. This project will consist of the following steps, reviews, and due dates:

Oct. 29 Team formation
Nov. 12 Student teams present objectives, stakeholder analysis, and framing (peer review)
Nov. 19 Student teams present proposed engagement method(s) and event design (peer review)
Nov. 26 Student teams conduct forums (peer, peer mentor, and instructor review)
Dec. 3 Remaining student team(s) conduct forums (peer, peer mentor, and instructor review)
Dec. 7 Student teams submit 3 page summary and documentation of event design, implementation, and assessment (in digital format)

Course Policies

1) Students are expected to attend class and submit papers on time. Failure to attend class will result in a lower grade for the course (see grading policy). Email your assignment to the peer mentor (not the instructor) before class and bring a hard copy to turn in at the beginning of class on the day it is due. Double-sided printing is acceptable. One exception is the last assignment of the semester, which will be submitted electronically to both the peer mentor and the instructor before 5 pm on the due date.

2) Students who miss a class are responsible for getting the notes and information from a fellow classmate.

3) This course carries the Writing Flag. Writing Flag courses are designed to give students experience with writing in an academic discipline. In this class, you can expect to write regularly during the semester, complete substantial writing projects, and receive feedback from your instructor to help you improve your writing. You will also have the opportunity to revise one or more assignments, and to read and discuss your peers' work. You should therefore expect a substantial portion of your grade to come from your written work.

4) Students are responsible for following the instructions provided for completing assignments. Assignments will be graded according to adherence to the instructions presented. If instructions are unclear to the student, the student is responsible for asking for clarification. All written assignments should utilize proper spelling, grammar, citation format, and organization. Students are encouraged to visit the Undergraduate Writing Center or the UT Learning Center for assistance with producing written material.

5) Scholastic dishonesty is not acceptable. Examples of scholastic dishonesty are unauthorized collaboration (e.g. copying, getting a friend to read a paper and taking their ideas without researching the ideas yourself), plagiarism (failure to cite the source of an idea or group of words that is not your own), and multiple submissions (turning in the same or a similar paper to fulfill multiple scholastic requirements). Scholastic dishonesty can be avoided by always turning in your own work and learning the proper citation techniques for borrowed words or ideas. The UT Learning Center and the Undergraduate Writing Center can assist students in maintaining academic integrity. Consequences for dishonesty range from receiving a failing grade to permanent dismissal from the university. Further information at http://deanofstudents.utexas.edu/sjs/acint_student.php. You may also ask your instructor for clarification when in doubt.

6) A student who is having problems with the course is expected to assume the responsibility for notifying the instructor when difficulties arise. (Don’t wait until the end of the semester!) A little known fact: The UTLC reports that an important variable between successful and unsuccessful college students is help-seeking behavior (asking professors questions, using the Teaching Assistants, using the learning center, etc.)

7) The course is a team effort between instructor and students: feedback is welcome.

8) Students are expected to respect the opinions and feelings of other students and guest speakers, even though they may differ from their own.

9) University policy is to respect religious holidays. Please advise me of any upcoming holidays and the dates that you will be missing classes so that we can make arrangements for assignments and covering class materials.

10) Please check your cell phone prior to class to make sure that it will not ring or otherwise signal during class. Please put your cell phone away during class unless needed for class exercise. Computers may be used only for note-taking or for class activities.

11) Office hours: Each Monday in class the peer mentor will have a sign up sheet for the instructor’s office hours and her own for that week. Please sign up. I (the instructor) much prefer face to face communications to email. I am usually available just before or after class or during the break as well. Please use email only for emergencies or quick clarifications. The peer mentor is here to help you with assignments and class preparation, as well as adjusting to campus life.
