Course Description:

This course aims to provide an overview of the political history of China and Taiwan since 1949. We will compare and contrast the state building process in mainland China and Taiwan from 1950 to today. While both regimes were under the authoritarian rule at the beginning of the 1950s, why did Taiwan democratize but not China? Meanwhile, does the democratic politics in Taiwan generate any implications for the democratic future of China? By comparing the state building process under the Chinese Communist Party (CCP) and Kuomingtang (KMT), students will gain a better understanding of the theories and implications of the interaction between political development and economic development. The objective of this course is providing students a deeper understanding of theories of state building with regional knowledge of greater China.

We will start the course by briefly going over the political history in China and Taiwan before 1949. We need spend two weeks to study some critical issues of regime consolidation during the early state building period after 1949 in both mainland China and Taiwan. For the remainder of the semester, we are going to compare and contrast different aspects of state building in China and Taiwan since 1950s. Due to the time limitation, we are only able to cover the following key aspects: party building, cultural policies, foreign influence, economic transformation, and political reforms.

Prerequisite:
Six semester hours of lower-division coursework in government.

Course Requirement and Grading:

1. Course attendance: 10%
2. Three in-class Quizzes: 15%
3. First midterm exam (Sep. 26) 25%
4. Second midterm exam (Nov. 2) 25%
5. Third midterm exam (Dec. 5) 25%

Course Materials:

The readings for this course are based on book chapters and articles. All the readings, can be accessed through the Canvas website for this class. Since many chapters are drawn from the following two books, I highly recommended you purchase them, if your budget allows.

Recommended books:

Students with Disabilities:

Students with disabilities are welcome to request appropriate academic accommodations. Please contact Services for Students with Disabilities (471-6259) and the instructor for further information.

Honor Code:

Every student, graduate as well as undergraduate, is expected to adhere to the UT Honor Code. Any violation can result in receiving “0” for the assignment in question as well as further disciplinary action. Students are strongly urged to refer to the following link from the Dean of Students for an explanation of what plagiarism is and how it can be avoided: http://deanofstudents.utexas.edu/sjs/scholdis_plagiarism.php.

Class Guidelines:

1. All exams will be administered promptly at the beginning of the class. No make-up exam. Under special circumstance and with the approval from the instructor, you might be able to increase the proportion of the next exam’s grade in the calculation of the final grade. For example, if you miss the first exam, the grade of your second midterm is 55% instead of 30% of the final grade.
2. All lectures and discussions, readings, and films will be subject to examination.
